

Montana Jones

FATHER

A pale, branching growth on the skin. Two patches, plus your left eye.

EURYDICE by Sarah Ruhl

Directed by Elia Monte-Brown

Costume Design: Kaylee Renaud

Costume Associate: Z Weschler

Costume Assistant: Ollie Reece

HEADSHOT

TIME
45 minutes

HELP NEEDED
None. You can do all of this yourself.

BEFORE YOU START
Your regular stage makeup should already be finished and powdered. This goes on top of it.

WHERE IT GOES

- Your right temple, spreading down over your cheekbone.
- Your left collarbone, spreading up the side of your neck.
- Your left eye, the one away from the growth on your face. White lashes and green splotches around it.
- Nowhere else. The rest of your skin stays clean.

SUPPLIES

- | | |
|--|--|
| ☐ White water activated face paint (Paradise AQ or Aquacolor) | ☐ A second white water activated cake, kept only for lashes |
| ☐ Bone or beige water activated paint | ☐ Two disposable mascara wands and a clean spoolie |
| ☐ Thin liner brush, size 0 or 1, long bristles | ☐ Glycerin or clear gloss |
| ☐ Red rubber stipple sponge | ☐ Translucent powder and a puff |
| ☐ Small natural sea sponge | ☐ Setting spray |
| ☐ Small flat brush, quarter inch | ☐ Hand mirror |
| ☐ Pale grey face paint | ☐ Water cup and paper towels |
| ☐ Pale sage green water activated paint | |

STEPS

- 1 Powder your base and set up 4 min
Dust translucent powder over your face and neck so the paint has something to grab. Tuck a paper towel inside your neckline. Prop a hand mirror so you can see your left collarbone. Do the neck first while you are fresh.
- 2 Neck: lay down the haze 3 min
Wet the sea sponge, pick up bone paint, and dab a thin cloudy layer over the whole patch. Keep it sheer. Dab lighter and lighter at the outside edge so it fades into your skin with no hard line.
- 3 Neck: draw the branches 7 min
Load the liner brush with bone. Start at the inner end of your collarbone. Draw two or three main lines heading up your neck. Split each one into two, split those again, then once more. Three rounds. Press lighter each time so the lines get thinner and end in a point. Never cross two lines. Never close a loop. Let one line in four just stop. Keep every line a little wobbly.
- 4 Neck: add the speckles 3 min
Dip a piece of the red sponge in white, blot most of it off on a paper towel, then press it onto the skin. Put the dots along your lines and in the V shapes where lines split. Heavy near your collarbone, scattered as you go up, never even. Add four or five stray dots past the last line tip. Then powder the whole patch so it cannot smudge.
- 5 Face: lay down the haze 2 min
Same as the neck. Sea sponge, bone paint, thin and cloudy, from your right temple down over your cheekbone. Fade the edges out.
- 6 Face: draw the branches 6 min
Start at the notch in your hairline just above your right ear. Same rules as the neck, but the lines run downward. Keep them heaviest near your hairline and let them thin out to nothing before your jaw. Stay well clear of your eye.
- 7 Face: add the speckles 3 min
Red sponge, white paint, same as before. Cluster near your hairline, scatter as you come down. A few stray dots past the last line.
- 8 Left eye: mold splotches 6 min
Load the quarter inch flat brush with sage green and press soft round blobs around the eye. Vary the size. Put them on your outer brow, your temple, your upper lid, and under your eye toward your cheek. Keep the edges rounded and leave clean skin between them. Then rinse the brush, pick up white, and ring each blob with a soft halo, heaviest where it meets the green and fading outward.
- 9 Left eye: white lashes 6 min
Wet the lash cake with a drop of water and work it into a paste on the back of your hand. Coat your top lashes root to tip with one wand and your bottom lashes with the other. Two thin coats beat one thick one. Comb them apart with a clean spoolie while damp so they dry separated and spiky. Keep your eye closed until it is dry.
- 10 Add depth, then seal it 5 min
Press a little pale grey on the sea sponge under the thickest clusters only. This is a whisper, not a layer. Rinse the sea sponge and wipe it damp around the outside edges to soften them. Powder everything, then spray with setting spray at arm's length with your eyes closed. Once it is dry, dab glycerin on four or five spots near your hairline and collarbone. The shine is what makes it look alive instead of painted.

TIPS

- Use bone for the haze and the branches. Pure white there looks chalky. The speckles and halos are the only white on you.
- If a line goes wrong, do not wipe it. Let it dry and press a speckle over it.
- Load the liner brush by pulling it sideways, not stabbing it.
- Steady your hand by resting your little finger on your face or collarbone.
- The stray dots past the last branch are what sell it. Do not skip them.
- Check it from across the room. If you cannot see it, make it stronger.
- If you sweat through it, press powder on. Do not repaint over damp paint.
- Keep the lash paint out of your eye. Flush with water if any gets in.
- Take it off with soap and warm water, then micellar water on the sealed areas.

REFERENCE

The growth. Pale branching lines, speckles, and a wet shine.

The left eye. White lashes, green splotches with white halos.